

Listowel Writers' Week Winter Series

presents Appropriate

St John's Theatre & Arts Centre, Saturday 11th December, at 8pm.

Appropriate, Sarah-Jane Scott's internationally award-winning and critically acclaimed debut is the darkly comic tale of Sorcha; queen bee of her small West of Ireland town and proud fiancé of ex-county hurling hero Marty.

She LOVES weddings and has been dreaming of her big day since forever and ever.

However... she has just fled her own reception.

Is it Appropriate? Has she gone mad? Or is this the first moment of clarity she has had in years?

Perched on the edge of her 'perfectly planned' life, Sorcha is pure ragin' at the dawning reality that she has never really listened to herself. Can she ever go back?

To book your tickets – click Ticketsolve - St Johns Theatre or phone 068 22566.

“Winningly tongue in cheek...In Sarah-Jane Scott's engrossing writing début, rituals of marriage and conventions of small-town Irish life have been updated to accommodate Instagram, but continue to grip tightly...an affecting solo.” Irish Times ★★★★★

Kindly sponsored by the Arts Council, Failte Ireland and Kerry County Council.

Email: info@writersweek.ie

Telephone: 068 21074